

TIME TO THINK

The Facilitator Practicum

Following the Facilitator Course, you will work with a Time To Think Consultant to become qualified by Time To Think to present the eight Applications professionally. With support and supervision you will complete the following Practicum Work:

Written essay on The Ten Components of a Thinking Environment

This explication should demonstrate your knowledge of the definitions and principles of each of The Ten Components. It should include stories from your experience to illustrate the positive impact of each Component on people's ability to think for themselves.

Delivery of each Application twice

Through delivery of each of the eight Applications (without charge) to a group (4 people minimum) organised by you, you will deepen your understanding about presenting and facilitating this work.

Notes and Reflections

After delivery of each Application, you will record your learning as well as any questions that arose from your delivery.

Thinking Pairs Practice

This practice in both the Thinker and the Thinking Partner role, twice a week until you finish the Practicum, once a week thereafter to maintain your certification, will sustain development of your understanding and expertise.

PROFESSIONAL SUPERVISION AND DEVELOPMENT

In order to offer this work professionally, you will join the Time To Think Collegiate and attend the quarterly meetings which include professional supervision and development provided by the Time To Think Faculty who taught you.

CERTIFICATE

After you complete the Practicum and become a member of the Collegiate, you will receive a certificate to confirm that you are a Time To Think Facilitator.

WEBSITE LINKS

After your certification, you also will be listed on the Time To Think Facilitators page of our website with a link to your website.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

When you begin to charge for the delivery of these Applications, you will be asked to make license and ongoing professional development agreements in order to retain your certification. The license fee will be 10%, as determined by you, of any fee you receive for delivering these Applications.
